We know death is inevitable-we think it only happens to other people. For forty-one years Bev shared her life with Larry. Without warning cancer and heart failure ripped their life apart. Every point of reference that Bev had ever known was buried with Larry. These poems are her life-finding journey from two to one, from hell to hope and from loss to life. -Irene Tomkinson, MSW, Therapist, Author of What Was I Thinking? Bound by grief, Bev found release on the blank pages of her notebook. With each line she wrote, Bev connected with her sorrow and moved one step closer to healing. Her courage to explore the depths of her pain, and her willingness to walk through the darkness and stand in God s light offers inspiration to others beginning their healing journey. -Nancy Eichhorn, M.Ed. M.A. Certified Holistic Health Counselor Bev was blessed by a love so deep, when it was lost, the pain was equally deep and so eloquently described in her writings. Bev writes about her wonderful love, her intense pain, her battle with despair, and hope of healing. She opens up her inner self and shares it with her readers. -William Adair, V.P. BCS Bank.
