POSIE. was bustle and excitement in the little city by the sea. What did it all mean? thought little Paste. She had never before these last few weeks heard any thing of the outside world to understand, and there was little life in the town--one could walk the length and breadth of it some days and scarcely meet a soul, with the exception of the daily occupants of the old slave market. There, the loafers of the town would sit and lounge, or nap at intervals, waiting to enjoy the sea breeze as it came in with the tide. Posie was naturally a thoughtful little girl. Soth her father and mother had gone to the great world beyond; so her ideas of the outer world were above, and how to be good, so as to get there, too, for her ojd...
