Walker: At the Commencement of the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College, July 9, 1873 Ladies and Gentlemen: The occasion of our assembling is one of no ordinary moment. The commencement exercises of every College are full of interest and importance to those immediately concerned as well as to the friends of education and human advancement. While the aspiration of the student on these occasions is to acquit himself in a manner worthy of himself, his preceptors, and his friends, and their hopes and affections are elevated or depressed as he succeeds or fails, the lover of education and of progress beholds all evidences of intellectual and moral development with the highest emotions of thankfulness and satisfaction. All these aspirations, hopes and emotions have their possessors and representatives in the intelligent audience before me, and should I not satisfactorily demonstrate my appreciation of these surroundings, my tongue will fail to enunciate the ideas and impulses of my head and heart. We have gathered here to witness and participate in the first...
