Excerpt: .Hoban, the architect of the President s House, was then pat in charge for a short period. An Englishman, Mr. George Hadfield, was afterwards employed, and he, in conjunction with Hoban, succeeded in getting the north wing ready for occupation in 1800. The Senate, House of Representatives, Supreme Court, and Library were accommodated in the one wing. Mr. Hadfield, however, became discontented and resigned his position. In 1803, Mr. Henry B. Latrobe, an Englishman of Huguenot descent, was his successor, and by him the south wing was completed. In 1814 the British burned out the two wings The space now occupied by the Rotunda, up to that period, was only a wooden scaffolding, which united the two portions of the building. Latrobe was employed to rebuild the wings, and also to design and erect the Rotunda and Dome. Becoming dissatisfied, he resigned in 1817....
